There is nothing quite like the Fife Arms. In the remote Aberdeenshire village of Braemar, hugged by the fast-flowing Clunie Water and set against a tableau of dramatic wide open skies, endless horizons, and the soaring Cairngorm Mountains, this wildly romantic hotel is the passion project of Iwan and Manuela Wirth - the couple behind the acclaimed global Hauser & Wirth galleries - who imaginatively restored a former landmark Victorian coaching inn into a flamboyant art experience. Inspired by the surrounding landscape, local people, history and culture, the Fife Arms is where tradition meets an explosion of contemporary art in an extraordinary story that unfolds in wonderfully extravagant detail.

“We often say that Braemar is the most famous village in the world. It has this extraordinary history, the Braemar Games have been happening for over 200 years. They draw a huge crowd, and we are always amazed at how international yet humble these games are, how authentic. And it is this spirit that has inspired our restoration of The Fife Arms.

If people are looking for an authentic, deep and almost spiritual experience, with great food in an extraordinarily comfortable place, with the most astonishing light and landscape, we hope they will find all that at The Fife Arms.”

— Iwan and Manuela Wirth

Motivated by the hotel's rich narrative of art, people and place, we have created this guide to give you a taste of what's to come and to share what our team love about the Fife Arms, the village of Braemar and the spectacular surrounding landscape.

Feel free to dip in for some quick tips on what to see and do in the local area or soak up the inspiring scenery and culture of Royal Deeside through our extensive reading lists, music recommendations and links to local lore.

The delight is in the detail at the Fife Arms, and we can't wait to welcome you.

THE GHILLIES

Ghillie is a Gaelic term for a Highlands attendant who looks after guests, particularly visitors on a fishing, hunting, or deer stalking expedition. Today, the Ghillie team at the Fife Arms not only looks after all of our guests, but they are in charge of creating unforgettable memories and experiences too.

Whether you have a special occasion you are celebrating, or you would like to create a bespoke itinerary to experience the best of what the Scottish Highlands has to offer, our team can create something exceptional. From thrilling helicopter rides to see the Cairngorms in their full glory to a private chef lunch in our remote hut perched in the middle of the grouse moors, special tastings at a local whisky boutique or even tailored menus, to explore the full range of possibilities, please email our Ghillie team, ghillie@thefifearms.com

EXPERIENCE THE EXTRAORDINARY

ART

As the creation of Iwan and Manuela Wirth, it's no surprise that the Fife Arms is all about the art. Bringing their lifelong passion to the hotel, the duo have personally curated an extraordinary collection of over 14,000 pieces that spans furniture, militaria, archaeology and taxidermy to an exceptional collection of contemporary fine art.

From portraits by Picasso, Man Ray and Lucian Freud, to images of the natural world by artists as diverse as Archibald Thorburn and Martin Creed, this exceptional collection fills the entire hotel, casually displayed to form an immersive, personal experience, unattainable in a public gallery or a museum setting.

Start your journey by tuning into our Audio Art Tour and on arrival, enjoy a guided Art Tour with our knowledgeable staff, explore our extensive library of art publications, or simply sit back and bask in the glorious collection of art.

CONSERVATION

Situated in the heart of Cairngorms National Park, the largest National Park in the United Kingdom, among the region's soaring mountains, deep river-cut valleys and swathes of dense pine forests, the very essence of the Fife Arms is inspired by this extraordinary landscape and surrounding nature.

With such natural beauty comes great responsibility and we are committed to supporting the region's delicate ecological balance through our programme. The hotel actively supports many local environmental protection projects, including an initiative aimed at safeguarding the River Dee's freshwater pearl mussels which, at one point, were hunted to near extinction. In fact, the cast bronze mussel shell fobs - on all the Fife Arms' room keys - references this much-loved endangered species.

On a broader scale, Ben Carter, the Director of Sustainable Growth at Artfarm (our parent company) works closely with local estates, landowners and environmental agencies across the region to ensure that our working practices and educational programmes do everything they can to champion the importance of environmental stewardship to our staff and guests.

Our enthusiasm for the local environment is undoubtedly fuelled by the passion of the Deeside residents who embrace the mantra 'by leaves we live', first said by the pioneering environmentalist, sociologist and town planner Patrick Geddes, who was born in the nearby village of Ballater in 1854, and whose ideas continue to resonate today.

If you are interested in learning more about our conservation programme and how this delicate landscape is managed, our Ghillie team can organise guided walks with our respected researchers. For those that wish to go into more detail, we can arrange private tailored briefings with our conservation experts.

THE EXCEPTIONAL

When we welcome a guest to the Fife Arms, we want to share with them an experience which is personal to their own passions and inspirations. Our dedicated Ghillie team specialise in creating exceptional experiences, whether it's a picnic in the woods with a private chef or a guided walk across the Highlands finishing up with a candlelit dinner overlooking a grouse moor. We also work closely with local artisans to create heirloom pieces for guests to have unforgettable mementos that can be shared with future generations, from a family tartan to your own whisky cask.

LOCAL HEROES

From bakeries to restaurants, there is so much to experience, so here are a few of our favourites, found in the neighbouring villages of Braemar:

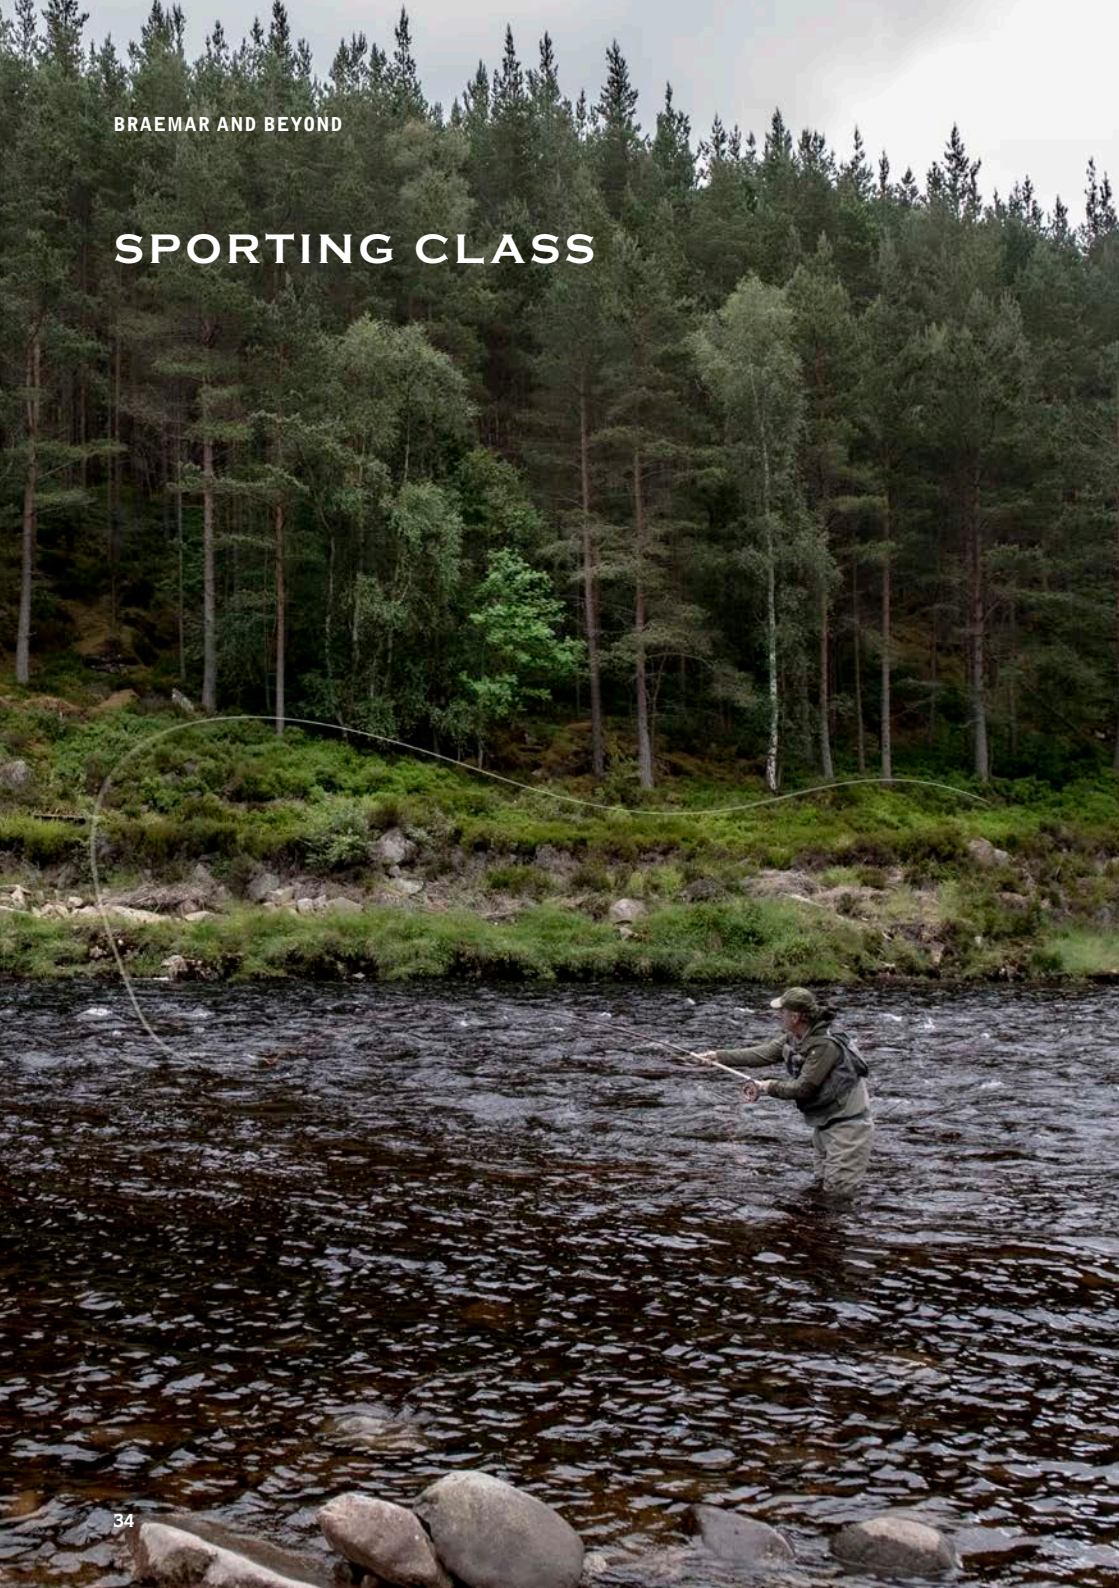

The Highlanders Bakehouse is a wee bakery in the nearby village of Crathie and is a must-visit to try Aberdeenshire's famous buttery. Also known as a rowie, this wonderfully buttery, flaky bread roll - similar to a croissant - is best served toasted with a good lashing of butter, jam and a strong cup of tea.

In the picturesque Highland village of Ballater, Rothesay Rooms pays tribute to the best of Scottish flavours, with light, modern dishes using only fresh, seasonal and local produce. The menu changes with the seasons but expect perfectly executed plates like the seared scallop and pressed oxtail, served with celeriac, burnt leek and topped with truffle.

Finally, on the banks of the River Dee, a little over an hour's drive from Braemar, Maryculter House is home to Poachers Brasserie, a casual all-day dining spot that serves classic favourites from juicy beef burgers to baked rice pudding.

PRE-ARRIVAL CONSIDERATIONS

APPAREL

Whether you prefer the comfort of a much-loved Barbour jacket or have a fondness for more formal evening wear, at the Fife Arms we are relaxed, and your attire will fit right in, whatever you choose to wear.

This being Scotland though, make sure to prepare for our notoriously changeable weather and pack plenty of layers along with a comfy pair of walking shoes to make the most of the breathtaking landscape surrounding the hotel.

And should you forget to bring anything, our Fife Arms Shop is at hand with everything from blankets, scarves and gloves to wraps made in the finest wools and cashmere, including a bespoke range of wearables in our signature Fife Arms tartan.

If you arrive with a suitcase brimming only with evening wear, no problem, we have a sturdy selection of outdoor clothing that you can borrow during your stay.

WEATHER

Aberdeenshire has been described as a place of big skies and wide horizons, loved for its fresh clear air and the quality of its light. Summer nights are lengthy and light with only a few hours of true darkness. In contrast, winter nights are long and star filled, occasionally lit by the spectacular Northern Lights (Aurora Borealis).

Braemar has twice entered the UK weather records with the lowest ever UK temperature of -27.2°C (-17.0°F), on 11 February 1895 and 10 January 1982.

It has also entered the record books on 1 October 2015 as being both the hottest and the coldest place in the UK – all in the same day! The mercury soared to 23.3°C (73.9°F) during the day but dipped dramatically to -1.3°C (29.6°F) in the early hours of the morning.

It's fair to say that you just never know what the Scottish weather is going to throw at you. And it's also no surprise to learn that Prince Albert donated a weather station to the village of Braemar, which is still in situ today.

A popular seasonal pastime is to check out the live weather conditions on the Glenshee snow gates webcam. Essential viewing in the winter months.

DOGS

Following faithfully on the heels of both HM Queen Victoria and our reigning Monarch HM Queen Elizabeth II, we love dogs. We have artworks immortalising them and a hotel bedroom dedicated to one, so it goes without saying you are welcome to bring your four-legged friends to stay with us at the Fife Arms.

We have a range of dog-friendly rooms and a supply of comfy dog beds, feeding bowls, blankets or anything else your dog may need to make themselves at home. Should the Highland weather prove too chilly for your pet, our Fife Arms Shop stocks a range of dog coats, while a visit to the Ghillie's desk may well become a highlight for your dog, not least for the stash of delicious treats they keep at hand.

The only restrictions we have are that dogs are not permitted in the Drawing Room, Clunie Dining Room or Spa but are welcome in all other public areas, including the Flying Stag bar where food is served all day.

PODCAST

From working with local artisans and suppliers, to contributing to village life, community is at the heart of everything we do at the Fife Arms and is imperative to building a sustainable future.

The People of the Fife

There's no doubt, too, that the Fife Arms wouldn't exist without the many members of the Braemar community who played a central role in the redevelopment of the hotel, and their stories are something we take pride in celebrating. Hosted by Braemar resident and former BBC producer and presenter, Doreen Wood, our 'People of the Fife' podcasts offer a fascinating insight into the development of the Fife Arms and the diverse range of individuals involved in bringing this special hotel to life. Listen to the experiences of some of the key people here from local historians Maureen and Tom Kelly to architect and lead contractor Ben and Tom Addy.

FILM, LITERATURE AND MUSIC

Film

From the whimsical romanticism of Vincente Minnelli's 'Brigadoon' to Danny Boyle's darkly comic 'Trainspotting', Scotland, in all its forms, has inspired filmmakers of the world.

The extraordinary Aberdeenshire landscape has featured in major studio productions including Christopher Nolan's 'The Dark Knight Rises', Disney/Pixar's 'Brave', and Zeffirelli's 'Hamlet', as well as low-budget sci-fi classics like 'The Planet' and 'Outpost 11'.

Our area too, has inspired one of the most iconic visual motifs of the Disney film empire; within an hour of the Fife Arms, you'll find the pink, turreted splendour of Craigievar Castle - a fabulous example of Scots Baronial architecture - which is believed to have been the inspiration for Walt Disney's Cinderella Castle.

Literature

Stories loom large in Scottish culture and Braemar and the Cairngorms have their own rich heritage as an inspiration for writers. From Robert Louis Stevenson's penning of 'Treasure Island' whilst holidaying in Braemar to the Victorian period's most notorious poet Lord Byron, and his intoxication of the Cairngorm landscape, our location has inspired much literary greatness.

*Away, ye gay landscapes, ye gardens of roses,
In you let the minions of luxury rove,
Restore me the rocks where the snow-flake reposes,
Though still they are sacred to freedom and love.
Yet Caledonia, beloved are thy mountains,
Round their white summits though elements war,
Though cataracts foam 'stead of smooth-flowing fountains,
I sigh for the valley of dark Lochnagar.*

Read Byron's full poem here

If you are to read one book before coming to visit us at the Fife Arms, we highly recommend 'The Living Mountain', by Scottish author Nan Shepherd. Completed in 1944, 'The Living Mountain' has come to redefine the experience of hillwalking and mountaineering from being 'on' the mountain to being 'in' the mountain. Her lyrical descriptions of her homeland have become the source of pride and inspiration to many beyond the mountain sport community and Shepherd's national importance is recognised by her image being carried on the country's five pound note.

"In September dawns I hardly breathe - I am an image in a ball of glass. The world is suspended there, and I in it."

— The Living Mountain

For the poetic of heart, we urge you to dive into the pages of Scotland's national bard, Robert Burns or seek out the hidden gems of Marion Angus, a turn-of-the-century poet who often wrote in her native Scots's dialect. Through these poets' words, you will see the land of Scotland but also the character of its people.

Mary's Song

*I wad ha'e gi'en him my lips tae kiss,
Had I been his, had I been his;
Barley breid and elder wine,
Had I been his as he is mine.
The wanderin' bee it seeks the rose;
Tae the lochan's bosom the burnie goes;
The grey bird cries at evenin's fa',
'My luve, my fair one, come awa'.'
My beloved sall ha'e this he'rt tae break,
Reid, reid wine and the barley cake,
A he'rt tae break, and a mou' tae kiss,
Tho' he be nae mine, as I am his.*

Music

Scotland is internationally known for its traditional music, which is instantly recognisable from its beat to its fiddles and bagpipes. This proud tradition has been re-embraced by a raft of new Scottish singer-songwriters who have returned to and re-imagined the music of their native land and seas, such as Lau, Jenny Sturgeon, Karine Polwart and Julie Fowlis.

But Scottish music isn't all about the past. It is also home to a thriving indie, pop and dance music scene – and a few major mainstream acts out there like Lewis Capaldi, Calvin Harris and Biffy Clyro.

When with us in Braemar you will have a chance to hear many of the different sounds of Scotland with regular weekly folk nights in our Flying Stag bar; intimate indie and contemporary folk gigs hosted by - and in - the Braemar Gallery and a varied programme of folk, classical and choral music in St Margaret's Art Centre in the heart of the village.

A regular performer within our Flying Stag Bar is the internationally respected local fiddle player, Paul Anderson. Paul is a highly skilled musician and holds a wealth of knowledge about Scotland's traditional music history and culture. He hosts regular musical session on his social media pages and has even composed a tune for the Fife Arms.

We look forward to welcoming you soon.
